

WiMR 2025

Women in Memory Research

Excellence in early-stage research must exist within the context of inclusivity. Women, though underrepresented in memory research (21-29% in Germany), have made substantial strides in advancing our understanding of memory. This event will help you to enhance your personal and professional development and to learn additional skills. It aims to encourage you to stay the course and enjoy the benefits of an academic career.

If you are either almost done with your masters or are looking for a PhD position, are interested in memory research and have excellent grades, head over to our website @ www.for2812.rub.de/wimr2025 for more details.
